

ALL OVER BUT THE SHOUTING

Japanese Believe That Port Arthur Cannot Hold Out But a Few Days Longer.

STOESSEL SENDS HIS FAREWELL

Says He Will Die With His Men in the Ruins of the Fortress--Late News From the Front Received.

(Special by Scripps-McTear.)
Rome, Aug. 22.—A dispatch to the Italia Militaire states that Kuropatkin has abandoned Liao Yang.

Stop All Progress.
London, Aug. 22.—A dispatch to the Evening News from Chefoo says the Japanese have captured the chain of forts at Port Arthur after a tremendous attack on them, yesterday. The shells from the Japanese guns even reached the harbor.

More Forts.
London, Aug. 22.—A telegram to the Evening News from Chefoo says the Japanese have captured the chain of forts at Port Arthur after a tremendous attack on them, yesterday. The shells from the Japanese guns even reached the harbor.

All But Gone.
Chefoo, Aug. 22.—Refugees from Port Arthur have just arrived and say the fortress is all but fallen. The Japanese obtained a position between Golden Hill and the town and reached Stoessel's residence on Aug. 21st. The Japanese were hotly pressing the Russian center along the railway and the Russian right near Golden Hill. Later the Japanese occupied Tai Ping Tse. The Japanese are preparing to celebrate the fall of the fortress.

His Tomb.
London, Aug. 22.—The Moscow correspondent of the London Morning Post wires that an intimate friend of General Stoessel, commanding the Russian garrison at Port Arthur, has received a cablegram from him, which was carried to Chefoo by a Russian officer and transmitted from there. It concludes as follows: "Farewell, forever. Port Arthur will be my tomb."

Very Feroocious.
London, Aug. 22.—Fighting, characterized by the utmost ferocity and resulting in the most appalling slaughter, is raging unabated at Port Arthur in the general assault in which the Japanese planned keeping 60,000 men in continuous action for at least three days in the expectation that it would result in the fall of the fortress. Two thousand five hundred Japanese were killed in one day of fighting during the attack still in progress, according to a dispatch from Chefoo. When it is realized that they are often obliged to charge across an open plain, swept by the Russian fire, mined by land, and obstructed by thick tangles of barbed wire and other obstructions, such a loss is easy to credit.

Russians Driven Back.
Chinese who left Port Arthur Sunday and arrived at Chefoo yesterday bring the first news of the present general assault. They state that the Japanese, by making desperate charges, which were reinforced by an artillery fire from Shushiyen and Lousia Bay, swept from the north into Pigeon Bay territory and drove the Russians back from the main forts. The Chefoo dispatch continues:

"The ground being comparatively flat in this vicinity, the Japanese were unable to hold it in the face of the Russian artillery fire, and they retired north an eighth of a mile beyond the sea of fire. The Chinese declare that the Japanese captured one important fort located on the Itzhan hills, midway between the western coast and the railway, on a line drawn approximately from a point midway between Pigeon and Lousia Bays.

Bombard Forty-eight Hours.
"The fighting resulting in the capture of this fort was exceedingly severe. The position was first subjected to a bombardment for over forty-eight hours. Then the Japanese infantry assaulted it and compelled the Russians to retire. The Russian artillery then directed a heavy fire on the spot, compelling the Japanese in turn to retire."

Second Meeting.
Shanghai, Aug. 22.—At the close of the second meeting of the foreign consuls last night it was announced that the questions regarding the Russian warships Askold and Grozovoi, now in this port for repairs, would be referred to Peking for adjustment by agreement between the Russian and Japanese consuls. As the Russian authorities have shown a decided disinclination to reconsider their refusal to comply with China's demand that the two ships leave China or disarm, the decision of the consuls is considered a point in favor of the Japanese.

A significant feature of last night's meeting of the consuls was the grim tone of the Japanese representative. He left no doubt as to Japan's intention to have the Russian ships disarmed if it had to be done by Japanese warships. Admiral Stirling, who is in command of the American naval forces here, denies that there was any intention on his part to intervene in the matter, and as a matter of fact there was no intervention. The American destroyer Chauncey went up the river to carry dispatches, and the fact that she made the trip at the same time as the Japanese destroyer was purely coincidental.

The Japanese destroyer made its first appearance at Woosung at 4:30 in the afternoon. Passing Woosung at full speed it steered directly up the river to Shanghai. Slipping its cable, the Chauncey followed. Just as the minkado's craft, cleared for action, dropping anchor off the Cosmopolitan dock, where the Askold is undergoing repairs, the American vessel shot between the two boats and also let go its anchor.

No Coaling.
London, Aug. 22.—The London Times understands that instructions have been given by the foreign office to the governments of all British colonies and dependencies that they shall not permit coaling privileges to be afforded the warships of either Japan or Russia while proceeding either to or from the seat of war. This action is taken because of the action of the Russian ships interfering with neutral commerce.

According to the Times, the orders prohibit granting permission to fleets, which are intercepting neutral vessels to use harbors, roadsteads or waters subject to the jurisdiction of England. This will prevent ships coaling either from shore or from coaling stations accompanying war fleets.

A proclamation to this effect has already been issued by the governor of Malta.

Has Full Confidence.
Washington, D. C., Aug. 22.—Consul General John Goodnow has the full confidence of the government. His activity during the Boxer troubles and during the war with Spain and the difficulties with the Philippines showed that he was a man of cool head and good judgment. He is the dean of the consular corps of Shanghai and is well thought of by the Chinese government and his fellow consuls. Mr. Goodnow came into prominence during the Boxer trouble, his keen discernment for a time made of the city. When the passengers appeared she withdrew to her state room and said to Lawyer Hayden, "This is the happiest hour of my life." The customs officers did not detain her an instant. On the voyage she prepared a statement for the press which was given out this morning. She regretted her state of health which prevented her talking with her friends of the press. To them and her fellow countrymen she is greatly indebted for their efforts and expressed her thanks. She was assured by her physician that a quiet rest would restore her health. She expressed her joy on her return to her native land. She believed God in his own good time would right the wrong she had suffered.

The Unfortunate American Woman Reached Her Native Heath This Morning by Steamer.

(Special by Scripps-McTear.)
New York, Aug. 22.—The steamer Vaterland, with Mrs. Maybrick aboard, docked shortly after eight o'clock this morning. A crowd of curious people swarmed the dock. They witnessed without any demonstration a woman walk down the gangplank on the arm of her lawyer, S. V. Hayden. She was hustled into a cab and driven to the Fifth Avenue hotel where she will stay over a day. Tomorrow she leaves for Hayden's home at Ellenville, near Kingston, N. Y. She was dressed in black and with a heavy veil and was of fragile stature as she appeared on the deck this morning and watched the statue of liberty and tall buildings him almost the sole dependence of trustworthy information upon which to base the line of policy to be pursued, both for sending military and naval forces to China and for securing harmonious and prompt action by all the powers.

As the next ranking American representative in China to Minister Conger, when the latter was cut off from all communication with Washington, upon Mr. Goodnow devolved the gravest diplomatic responsibilities, which he met and discharged in a manner to excite unstinted admiration. He exerted a notable influence in holding the southern and central viceroys to firm measures for the security of all foreigners in their provinces.

Mr. Goodnow was born in Greensburg, Ind., June 29, 1858, and removed with his parents to Minneapolis at the age of 18 years. He took the A. B. degree at the university of Minnesota in 1879. He was appointed consul general at Shanghai by President McKinley on July 12, 1898.

Taking Testimony.
Shanghai, Aug. 22.—Testimony before a naval court today shows the shelling and sinking of the Hipsang by the Russians to have been a reckless and wanton act. The British steamer Hipsang, which belonged to the Indo-China Steam Navigation company, limited, was sunk by the Russians off Pigeon bay early the morning of July 16. The name of the torpedo boat destroyer which sunk the Hipsang is not known. No provocation had been given; the steamer was on her regular course from Newchwang to Chefoo and her lights were burning brightly. There were seven Europeans and eighty-three Chinese on board the Hipsang. The Europeans and sixty-nine of the Chinese were saved uninjured. Nine Chinese were wounded and three were killed on board the vessel. One Chinese is missing and probably was killed. Another was drowned by the capsizing of a boat.

No Interference.
In fact, it is said by high officials that so carefully will this government abstain from interference in the Russo-Japanese difference that a battle can be waged in Shanghai without any other action on our part than the filing of a protest and a request that the customary notice of bombardment be given in order that Americans can remove to a place of safety.

It is not believed here that the Japanese would court the opposition of Germany, France and other powers having great interests in Shanghai by making war in the harbor, but it is accepted as a fact that the Japanese government is determined to prevent Russia using neutral territory as a harbor of refuge for her damaged ships or as a means of communication with Port Arthur by wireless stations, as in the case at Chefoo.

Referred to Peking.
Shanghai, Aug. 22.—At the close of the second meeting of the foreign consuls last night it was announced that the questions regarding the Russian warships Askold and Grozovoi, now in this port for repairs, would be referred to Peking for adjustment. As the Russian authorities have shown a decided disinclination to reconsider their refusal to comply with China's demand that the two ships leave China or disarm, the decision of the consuls is considered a point in favor of the Japanese.

Oshkosh will contribute three and Milwaukee two of the twenty-five bands which will participate in the annual convention of the Northwest Band association in Oshkosh next Sunday. Mayor John Mulva will deliver an address of welcome, and the response will be made by Mayor Byron Harwig of Mayville, president of the association. At 1 o'clock there will be a parade.

George Leander Meets His Death.
Paris, Aug. 22.—George Leander, a well-known American cyclist, was killed in an accident at Paris in the races. He was riding behind a motor cycle.

MANUAL TRAINING RECEIVES BONUS

Janesville is One of the Schools To Receive State Funds.

(Special to The Gazette.)
Madison, Wis., Aug. 22.—State Superintendent Cary has apportioned the state aid for free high schools maintaining departments of manual training. There are 15 of these schools to receive aid this year. Each receives the sum of $250, making a total of $3,750 to be distributed this year. The reports of Eau Claire and another manual training school are not yet complete. The other 13 schools participating in the benefit are Appleton, Beaver Dam, Chippewa Falls, Janesville, Marinette, Mayville, Oshkosh, Racine, Superior, Washburn, Wausau, Grand Rapids and Menomonie.

WAITING WORD OF TRUE SITUATION

Secretary of State Waits for Official News From Minister Conger on Chinese Situation.

(Special by Scripps-McTear.)
Washington, Aug. 22.—Acting Secretary of State Aldrich this morning called Minister Conger at Peking, asking for further light on the situation at Shanghai and Chefoo. He said no action will be taken by the department pending a reply.

Want Results.
Shanghai, Aug. 22.—Another meeting of the consuls of the various nations was called today by the American consul, Goodnow, to consider the situation created by the inability of China to compel Russia to obey the orders at Peking; also for means of protecting the foreign settlement. The Tao Tai have notified Goodnow that the Chinese cannot afford them protection. Word was received from the viceroy of Nankin refusing the request of the Tao Tai that a Chinese squadron be sent to compel Russia to carry out orders.

Had No Right.
Shanghai, Aug. 22.—The naval court decided that the British steamer Hipsang was sunk without cause by a Russian torpedo boat in Pigeon bay on July 14th. The Russians claimed it tried to run away, but the captain testified the engines were stopped when she sunk.

KEMPF WAITS FOR GOVERNOR'S PICK

Now Thoroughly Humbled, the State Treasurer Will Not Decide on New Officials.

(Special to The Gazette.)
Madison, Wis., Aug. 22.—State Treasurer Kempf yesterday said that he had not yet determined whom he would appoint as deposit clerk and correspondence clerk, in the places of W. T. Duke and William Richter of Milwaukee, whose resignations he accepted Saturday.

TRIED TO DROWN A WHOLE CITY

St. Mary's, Ohio, Bulkhead on the Water Reservoir. Partially Blown Out by Dynamite.

(Special by Scripps-McTear.)
St. Marys, Ohio, Aug. 22.—Unknown persons attempted early this morning to blow up the bulkhead of St. Marys reservoir with dynamite. The state boat near by was badly damaged and the locks were also damaged. The escape of the immense body of water would cause a loss of many lives and much property. It is believed the dynamiting was done by parties wishing to empty the lake and prevent an overflow in the spring which would cause a damage to crops.

COMPLETE THEIR END OF THE SUIT

Packers End Their Arguments That They Should Be Allowed to Lodge Men.

(Special by Scripps-McTear.)
Chicago, Ill., Aug. 22.—The hearing on the application of the packers for an injunction restraining the city from preventing the lodging of men in the stockyards was completed before Judge Brennan today. The judge announced he would give a decision tomorrow.

The strikers have drawn a line about the stockyards and propose to shut out both the union and nonunion labor. Committees of union printers and janitors have protested to the strike leaders this morning. The only answer to the protest was, "You can't work."

NEWS OF THE STATE IN BRIEF.

Lewis Dyerson was killed in the town of Dodgeville while working on a new residence for Sever Hanson. A timber fell from the roof, striking him on the back.

Simon Colfish, electrician in charge of the incandescent light plant of Hudson, was instantly killed by coming in contact with a live wire.

The Rev. F. M. Haight, presiding elder of the Ashland district, conducted the dedicatory services at the new Methodist church.

Twenty-five other persons at Willow Lakes were injured, but not seriously.

Buildings in Ruins.
The greatest damage was done at Willow Lakes and Bryant. At Willow Lakes, a small town in Hamlin county, every building was wrecked. Three churches, a school house and all the elevators and livery barns are lying in heaps of ruins. The Great Northern depot is across the track and seven box cars are bottom side up. The Methodist church is upside down on the parsonage.

FOURTEEN ARE DEAD.

Estimate of Property Lost in Minnesota Tornado Reaches $2,500,000.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 22.—The latest compiled estimate of the loss occasioned by Saturday's tornado in Minnesota shows that the dead number fourteen, while two are perhaps fatally injured. The property losses aggregate $2,555,000, of which more than half was sustained in St. Paul, where the damage is estimated at $1,780,000, over $1,000,000 of which is felt by the municipality. Minneapolis lost $500,000; Stillwater, $100,000; Waconia, $75,000; and the country districts, $100,000.

Family of Six Is Missing.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 22.—Reports from Zumbira Heights, Lake Minnetonka, express grave fears for the family of a farmer named Kall, who lives about two miles west of that place, on the road to St. Bonifacius. The house and barn were completely ruined by the tornado and no trace of the family of six persons could be found.

Tornado in Wisconsin.

Fennimore, Wis., Aug. 22.—A tornado that struck here did damage amounting to $50,000 to buildings in and around this city. The heaviest loss was the general merchandise firm of T. N. Kern & Co., whose loss exceeds $8,000.

MURDER CHARGE FALSE; MAN TURNS UP ALIVE

The Meeting of Brothers at Grand Rapids, Clears Up an Old Murder Mystery.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 22.—Two brothers, one of whom had been tried for his life on the charge of murdering the other, met unexpectedly at a hotel in this city Monday. They are Edward S. Van Lieu of this city and Cornelius S. Van Lieu of Pasadena, Cal.

The meeting cleared up the mystery of long standing and relieved one of the brothers of a shadow which has rested upon him for years.

Twenty years ago the brothers had quarreled at Onondaga county, New York, and Cornelius left home without saying good-by. His disappearance was a mystery. His brother was accused of putting him out of the way and after two trials was discharged.

Face to Face in Hotel.

Monday when Edward, who located here five years ago, went into a local hotel a stranger accosted him with the question: "Is this Eddie Van Lieu?"

"It is," was the reply.
A dispatch was sent to the aged mother in Onondaga county, New York, and another to the Onondaga county authorities, informing them of a happy reunion. The brothers have decided to return to the old home at once.

The dead: Viola Robinson, St. Paul; George Kweison, St. Paul; Lorin F. Hokanson, St. Paul; Richard Hildebrand, Minneapolis; Albert Uhde, St. Louis Park; Hedger, child, St. Louis Park; Gustav Moye, Waconia; Mrs. Gustav Moye, Waconia; Fred Gross, Waconia; Hubert Lehman, Waconia; Fred Gross, Hutchinson; Mrs. Gross, Hutchinson; unidentified woman, Dallas.

In addition to the fatally injured, nearly 200 persons sustained injuries of a minor character.

City Is Heavy Loser.

The municipality, through the destruction of bridges, school buildings, parks and other public property, suffered the greatest loss, its damage closely approximating $1,000,000. The other losses involve nearly 200 business firms and individuals.

In Minneapolis the extent of the injury done is not so great as was at first reported. The largest individual loser was Donaldson's glass block, an immense department store. The loss to building and stock is estimated at $100,000.

Twice Tried for Murder.
The next day after the departure of Cornelius a search began. The search was in vain and it was rumored that Cornelius had been struck by his brother and carried away. Edward was afterward tried in the courts of Onondaga county, but set up a claim of self-defense and the jury disagreed. A second trial followed and he was discharged.

COUNCIL KILLS MILLS MEASURE

PROVIDING FOR COLLECTION AND DISPOSAL OF GARBAGE.

DRAFEHL NEW DOG CATCHER

Blair & Summers Will Build South Side Fire Station—Other Business of Session.

All of the city fathers, save Alderman Matheson, were in their seats when Mayor J. W. Merritt called the council to order last evening. After the minutes of the previous meeting had been read and approved, the opinion of City Attorney Burpee on the city's liability for ambulance service in emergency cases where patients are objects of charity, was submitted. It was held that inasmuch as the city cared for its poor under the county system, the county authorities must settle with A. A. Russell for the cases in question—those of George Ahlert who was fatally injured by falling into the Otto Lohengreen who fell from the bridge. As far as hospital service was concerned it was held that the city could purchase a site and erect a hospital, or it could rent a building and provide ambulance service, but it was the opinion of the attorney that it could not provide ambulance service for a private institution. Postmaster Kenyon had expressed his willingness to make all necessary arrangements with the ambulance line.

Dog Catcher Appointed.
William Drafehl who resides at No. 88 Highland avenue, was appointed official dog catcher and keeper of the pound. He filed his bond of $100 and upon the confirmation of his appointment and acceptance of the bond became the accepted officer of the city. Mr. Drafehl stated that he would commence his rounds tomorrow. The petition of thirty-nine residents living on School, Lincoln, and High streets and Park avenue against the building of a fourth ward voting booth on the triangular park near the Webster school was received and placed on file. The finance committee's report on bills and the pay roll for August and the report of the board of education for July were adopted. The judiciary committee reported favorably on the bonds of W. S. Jeffries, member of the fire and police commission, and the four bonds amounting to $25,000 filed by M. J. Benson, sewer contractor.

Plans for Fire Station.
Alderman Schwartz of the fire and water committee moved the acceptance of the single bid offered on the revised plans of the new fire station—that of Blair & Summers—for $2-155. The bid was accompanied by a certified check for $250. Alderman Jackman suggested that the bid exceeded the appropriation made for the purpose of several hundred dollars and was of the opinion that it would be wise to delay the matter until spring. The other aldermen, however, were disposed to be generous and the motion passed.

Repealed Garbage Ordinance.
The ordinance providing for the collection, removal, and disposal of garbage in the city of Janesville, framed after much investigation and labor by Dr. James Mills, the then alderman, and passed on April 18, was repealed without ceremony last evening. Alderman Comstock introduced the measure calling for its repeal and moved a suspension of the rules to permit it to be wiped out at one session. The move was evidently decided upon in secret caucus as no attempt to enlighten the public on the motives and reasons for nullifying what was generally regarded as a good ordinance, was made. Aldermen Grove and Jackman registered negative votes but the others voted with Ald. Comstock. Shortly after the passage of the Mills ordinance last spring some remarks to the effect that the measure was adopted merely out of courtesy to the councilman and would be repealed at a favorable moment moved Alderman Matheson to say that no small sum for publication, etc., was not his liking and that he for one had believed it to be a wise measure—otherwise he would not have voted for it. Alderman Matheson is out of the city and was not present at the meeting last night.

Highways and Sewers.
Sidewalk grades on Oakland avenue, Galena, South Jackson, and Washington streets were accepted. A grade on Racine street from Main to Glenetta was ordered. Laura E. Burr was granted permission to occupy a portion of South Jackson street while building a residence. Similar permission was granted Edward Schindley with regard to that portion of High street in front of lot 13, Pearce's subdivision. An order for a sidewalk to be built in front of the R. J. Whittemore premises was adopted. The report of City Engineer Kerch on the encroachments of property owners on the street was received. The street commissioner and the city engineer were appointed as a committee of two to make necessary repairs on the Monterey bridge. The First Presbyterian church, S. D. Grubb, and Lizzie Morris were granted permission to construct an eight inch sewer on North Jackson street to connect with the main sewer.

HEALTHY PLANTS.
Require the Most Careful Attention as Well as Good Soil.
Did you ever see a rosebush which, despite the most careful environment of soil, sunshine and of atmosphere, seemed never to achieve a healthy growth?
A ton of manure will not help a plant that has a canker eating out its heart. You must destroy the cause before you can remove the effect.
You cannot cure Dandruff and Baldness by rubbing on hair lotions, and rubbing in vasoline, etc.
You must look to the cause of the trouble—it's a germ in the roots of your hair which causes it to fall out. Sewbore Herpelde destroys the germ, and healthy hair is the sure result.

meet with mains south of the city hall. On recommendation of Health Officer W. D. Merritt the purchase of six new and improved garbage cans was ordered. The city engineer was instructed to prepare plans for the extension of the storm sewer on Lincoln street. Repairs on North First street between Bluff and Wisconsin streets were ordered. The street commissioner was ordered to place two poles on the west side of Washington street near the drinking fountain to prevent driving across the apron. On motion of Alderman Grove the street commissioner was instructed to build a storm sewer at the Mole culvert according to the plans and specifications of the city engineer. When someone remonstrated that there was no money, Ald. Grove responded that "it made no difference." The order passed.

Streets on Labor Day.
Alderman Jackman inquired as to what had been done with regard to the communication from the labor unions asking for the use of the streets on Labor day. Mayor Hutchinson stated that he had granted the use of the streets for picnic purposes under the supervision of the marshal. A question propounded as to whether the thoroughfares were to be used as they were during the Elks' carnival, brought forth the startling declaration from Alderman Merritt: "We don't want any more Elks here!" The action of the mayor was approved by the council. The Central Wisconsin Medical association was granted the use of the city hall assembly room on October 25.

QUINCY TO OWN WATER WORKS

Stock Company to Be Formed to Acquire Plant Now in Operation.
Quincy, Ill., Aug. 23.—Not having the power under the law to borrow or raise by taxation the additional money necessary, application has been made to the secretary of state for license to incorporate the Quincy Water Works company, according to Corporation Counsel Pope's plan of acquiring the water works from L. & C. H. Bull for the city under the $500,000 option given the city by the Bulls. The stock company, to be formed of citizens, will hold the water works until the city has the sum necessary to take the plant off their hands. The city has at present $250,000 in the water works sinking fund.

Two Die in Train Wreck.

Portsmouth, Ohio, Aug. 23.—Two Norfolk & Western freight trains collided at the Kenova entrance to the Ohio river bridge. Twenty-two cars and one engine were wrecked. Two tramps were killed, and Engineer Slaten was fatally and Conductor Hensley seriously hurt.

FATHER SHOT HIS SON BY MISTAKE

Frank Akin Tried to Scare Cows From Corn Field and Hit Son with Bird Shot.

Four pieces of fine bird shot which were almost spent, lodged beneath the skin of the five year old son of Frank Akin of the town of Harmony on Friday last, caused a sensational article to be printed in a morning paper stating that the boy was lying in a dangerous condition at the home of his father. Mr. Akin was not shooting crows as stated, but had gone into a corn field to scare some crows who were eating and trampling the corn. The little five year old boy instead of being seriously and dangerously injured was but slightly hurt and was in town with his father yesterday afternoon looking none the worse for his accident. Twelve during the day Mr. Akin had driven the cows out of the corn field and what told they were there again started with his gun loaded with fine bird shot to give them a taste they would not forget. His little son ran along the side of the field and was on the opposite side from his father when four spent shot struck him. One grazed his temple, one struck the lobe of his ear, one hit his neck and one lodged in the scalp just beneath the skin. Dr. Edden was sent for and the four pieces of shot were quickly removed. The little fellow was plucky and did not cry much and was not seriously hurt. Mr. Akin is a noted ball player and an enthusiastic democrat.

STATE PRISON IS TO HAVE BOOKS

Local W. C. T. U. Is To Send a Box of Magazines and Books for the State Charges.

The W. C. T. U. will meet in regular session with Mrs. E. M. Poorman, 213 South Academy street, Wednesday, at 3 o'clock sharp. Mrs. Poorman extends a special invitation to every member to be present. An interesting program is promised. A box of literature is being packed for the state prison at Waupun. Members are asked to bring magazines and books for Mrs. L. Berrell, 57 N. High street.

DEMOCRATS ARE VERY HAPPY NOW

Leaders of the Donkey Party Like Vilas Mentioned for Governor.

Janesville democrats like the fact that William F. Vilas is mentioned for the nomination of Governor. While they deplore the fact that there is no democratic paper in the first congressional district to take up the cause of the Donkey party still they appreciate the fact that the Gazette publishes the news. The announcement that William F. Vilas was being talked of for the nomination of governor at the convention of the democratic party at Oshkosh came as a surprise to Janesville people last night. This morning the Chicago papers announced the same news. With Vilas as the nominee the democrats feel that they have a fighting chance for Governorship. William F. Vilas was postmaster General and secretary of the Interior under President Cleveland and later became Senator from Wisconsin when the landslide occurred in 1890. He has long been considered one of the leaders of the party in the west and while he deserted it in 1896 and again in 1900 when the Free Silver craze made this party popular, he has always been true to the principals. Since the return to the solid financial basis Senator Vilas has again taken a prominent position. The talk of ex-Governor Peck does not please Janesville and Rock County politicians. As one man said: "Peck can not talk on the stump and we need a man with force. Vilas is the man. Give us Vilas and we can win."

PURITY HAS ITS INNINGS TODAY

Governor Is Learning How Wicked Hurley Really Is for Campaign.

Iniquities of the village of Hurley, a hustling mining town on the northern state line of Wisconsin, are being aired in a hearing before Governor La Follette. Former Assemblyman M. C. McFadden is trying to have Sheriff John E. Sealy and District Attorney George C. Foster of Iron county ousted from office for alleged conspiracy to protect gamblers and houses of ill fame in the violation of the law. Evidence has been presented to the effect that the village is overrun with these objectionable features and that the place is determined upon a purely not only hostile to the reform but actually hostile. It has been established before the governor that Hurley has at least six flourishing gambling houses and some thirty places where characterless women operate and that the officials have connived at the lawlessness. The sheriff and district attorney represent in their own defense that the reform movement is insincere, that it is the result of the defeat of the governor's faction in the republican party warfare. The officials are anti-administration men and the people behind the position to oust the officials are La Follette men. The public sentiment of Hurley for a score of years permitted substantially the situation that now exists there and scarcely a case is on record of a conviction for the offenses committed. Should the governor throw the officers out of their places an appeal will be taken to the supreme court.

EMPTY TREASURY IS A DRAWDRAWBACK

Football Team Cannot Start Training with No Money To Pay Expenses.

The preliminary football campaign season of the Wisconsin gridiron squad has been postponed until September 1 or later on account of the shortage of funds and because few candidates will put in an appearance in time to make the scheduled camp this week practicable. The squad that will go into training at Lake Waubesa under Assistant Coach Doehms will number less than a dozen and will include only such attractive men as are expected to be leaders for the eleven. For this reason the personnel of the little squad of camper football men will be scanty.

The men who will be taken are those whose board and lodging must be paid by the athletic association until school opens and the outfit will be actually a saving for the athletic association as the expenses at Lake Waubesa are less than in Madison.

"Red" Wilmarth of Aurora, Ill., is heralded as the most worthy acquisition of the Badgers this fall. He is a brother of the famous Wilmarth who starred at quarterback on Wisconsin teams some five years ago under the coaching of Phil King. The new man weighs 190 pounds, is said to run 100 yards in 16.25 seconds and was reputed the greatest half back of any high school team in the state of Illinois. Aurora has established a record of being a source of great athletes. It produced the great Slater, Hamill and Catlin of the University of Chicago and the famous Mather, Wilmarth, Todd and Findlay of Wisconsin football, track and aquatic teams.

OPEN BIDS FOR NEW BUILDINGS

Janesville State School for the Blind Will Have Many Improvements Made To It.

On Wednesday the state board of control will open the bids for the construction of a greenhouse, root cellar and an leehouse at the State School for the Blind. These improvements will cost in the neighborhood of $2,500. The board will meet in special session to act on the bids presented and the successful bidder will be announced tomorrow. Several local firms have made bids for the work and it is probable that one of them will receive the contract as the amount involved is not sufficient to induce outsiders to enter the competition.

LITTLE GIRL WAS ATTACKED BY COW

Eight-Year-Old Agnes Buege Was Trampled by Enraged Bovine Yesterday.

Bovine emotions as well as those of human beings presumably must have been an outlet. Charles Stoller was driving along Eastern avenue yesterday with a calf in his wagon. Behind the vehicle trudged the cow-mother, her anger growing at every step. Every once in a while she paused and whetted her "claws," according to the morning paper, on a cobblestone in order that she might wreak swift vengeance on something or somebody. Suddenly her opportunity came and she sprang from the street into a group of little girls standing near the sidewalk. Eight-year-old Agnes Buege was attacked and only the interference of bystanders, perhaps, saved her from being trampled to death. As it was she was badly cut about the head and hips. Dr. Woods was called and the child was removed to the Otto home, No. 8 Armour street. She is getting along nicely today.

It will probably be late in September before the new bridge will be open for traffic.

Nerve Fag.

If You Waste Your Nerve Energy, After While You Will Suffer For It.

You can waste nerve force by excess, over-work, worry, anxiety, etc. You can weaken yourself by not eating proper food or securing sufficient rest to renew the nerve energy you use up.

The proper treatment in addition to good phosphatic food, such as whole meal bread, prepared cereals, etc., is Dr. Miles' Restorative Nerveine. This is as truly a brain and nerve food as any food you could eat, and besides, furnishes strength and tone of its own, which goes to the weakened nerve system, and sets it to rights.

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nerveine is a refreshing, revitalizing tonic food-medicine for the brain and nerves. It reconstructs the brain, restores the nerve tissue, and gives you a new and vigorous brain with new life and vigor.

Dr. Miles' Nerveine has made so many marvelous cures, of people so sick the doctors thought they were incurable, that it is today the standard medicine in many thousands of American homes. The first bottle is guaranteed to help you, or druggist returns your money.

"The extreme heat, close confinement and intense mental strain incident to the banking business, has caused me to suffer with nervousness and insomnia. It gives me pleasure to say that I have used Dr. Miles' Nerveine with very satisfactory results in the treatment of these conditions, and now on my little bottle, and eat and sleep well, in fact have almost forgotten that I was ever nervous."—J. TOBACCO CROP MUCH DISCUSSED

PROSPECTS FOR A GOOD HARVEST TALKED OVER.

NEW ENGLAND PROMISES WELL

New York Buyers Have Begun Riding and Investigating the Existing Conditions.

It has been a case of see-saw with the prospects for the new crop for the past six weeks. At the close of planting, weather conditions had been entirely favorable and an almost perfect stand upon the fields was the result. Then a period of prolonged drouth followed which resulted in the development of much unevenness in size and quality, so that growers began to wear the gloomy faces of last season. Up till the other day, indeed, the drouth continued, and the adversity of conditions was aggravated by the temperature which approached dangerously near the freezing point. It was then that growers began to fear a repetition of last season's calamities. The other day, however, copious rains fell over the southern portion of the state, which, if followed by warm weather, should result in the harvesting of an exceptionally good crop. As far as the 1903 crop is concerned, beyond a few small purchases for the remnants of cases goods left in first hands, there is no movement. Shipments out of storage from Edgerton for the week did not exceed 500 cases.

So Ideally Favorable Were Circumstances Toward the Crop in the Earlier Part of the Season that It Would Have Been Too Much to Hope for That the Harvest Should be Reached without a Single Adverse Accident. And the Misgivings of the Prudent Grower Have Been Realized in the Shape of a Half-Storm which Absolutely Devastated Some of the Best Crops in Massachusetts. Outside the Storm of a Few Weeks ago which did a Little Damage in the Neighborhood of Enfield, Conn., this is the first real setback that the tobacco crop has suffered. Fortunately it was local in its scope, not extending much beyond the Westfield, Southwick and Longmeadow districts. Around the first mentioned town, however, it is estimated that from 60 to 75 per cent. of the crop has been destroyed, the leaves being completely ridged and rendered useless, and that the damage will amount to close on $150,000. Otherwise conditions have been favorable. Growth has been extraordinary rapid, the plants are large and stocky, and it is thought by some that the yield will be the greatest per acre in ten years.

New York.

There has been a little riding during the past week and a number of small crops have been sold. A few shipments were made from Baldwinville local warehouses. The new crop is progressing nicely, weather conditions having been unusually propitious. This, added to its exceptional smallness, leads growers to hope that for once, in a way, fair prices may be realized.

AMONG THE WORLD'S WORKERS

News Notes From Various Sources of Great Interest to the Workman.

New York city stone setters receive from 65 1-2 to 68 3-4 cents an hour.

More than 25 local unions of different trades have been organized in Porto Rico under the auspices of the A. F. of L., and more than 1,500 members have become affiliated with it.

From returns sent to the Labor Department of the London Eng. board of trade, the mean proportion of unemployed for ten years, 1894 to 1903 inclusive, was 8.8 per cent.

There are some dry goods clerks in the city of Mexico receiving $250 a month, a large number receiving $200, while the number of clerks in this line who work for $150 a month is by far the largest number of the three.

The threatened reduction of wages, affecting 88,000 Scottish miners, was recently discussed at Dalkeith.

There are practically no union men idle in Northern Texas, and even few non-union men are without work. Union men, however, receive from 10 to 40 per cent. higher wages and average two hours a day less than the non-union workers.

VERDICT OF THE PARTY

From the report of the committee on Credentials to the REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION, which was unanimously adopted by that convention, June 23, 1904.

Your committee report it to be their final judgment that the convention which elected John C. Spooner, J. V. Quarles, J. W. Babcock and Emil Baensch as delegates at large, and their alternates at large, to this convention from the state of Wisconsin WAS THE REGULAR CONVENTION OF THE REPUBLICAN PARTY IN WISCONSIN, and that the delegates elected by it are the regular elected delegates at large from the state of Wisconsin to the republican convention, and, as such, are entitled to seats in this convention.

GEORGE FRISBIE HOAR.

Senator Hoar has spent over fifty years in public life, during which he served four years in the House of Representatives and twenty-seven years in the senate. He is dying a poor man. His loss will be the nation's loss, but especially will it fall upon Massachusetts, for Senator Hoar was peculiarly of the type of man that has distinguished that state. A man of character, a man to whom principle is dearer than all the world; a man of the time when men fought for something besides money and the political power that brings money; a man who was opposed to commercialism—a true idealist. He has had his faults, his whims, his crochets and his weakness, but he has been a true man, and in his passion for the truth, a great man. Those who would estimate Senator Hoar at his real worth can best do so by calling over the roll of the United States senate and noting how his colleagues measured up beside him. Here a millionaire broker in legislation, here a dealer in franchises, here a luckster in tariff schedules, here a blatherskite swashbuckler, here a party boss, past-master in the art of dirty politics, here a row of silent, wire-pulling, stock-jobbing nonentities—can not each man name them for himself? And in this "Millionaire's Club," as it is sometimes called, Senator Hoar, with a handful of men like him—one of whom, George Graham Vest, has but lately gone—has kept alive and handed down to those who will come after them something of the dignity of the glory of the United States senate as the fathers of the country conceived it. Call the roll of that body and ask how many of them whose names it contains could have uttered these words spoken by Senator Hoar in his great speech on the Philippines in May, 1902:

"I have sometimes fancied that we might erect here in the capital of the country a column to American liberty which alone might rival in height the beautiful and simple shaft which we have erected to the fame of the Father of His Country. I can fancy each generation bringing its inscriptions which should re-echo its own contribution to the great structure of which the column should be but the symbol."
And then he pictures the Puritan, saying:

"I brought the torch of freedom across the sea. I cleared the forest. I subdued the savage and the wild beast. I laid in Christian liberty and law the foundations of empire." And then the Colonial: "I stood by the side of England on many a hard fought field. I helped humble the power of France. I saw the Illinois go down before the Lion at Louisburg and Quebec. I carried the cross of St. George in triumph in Martinique and the Havana. I knew the stormy pathways of the ocean." And then the Revolutionary: "I encountered the power of England. I declared and won the independence of my country. I placed that declaration on the eternal principles of justice and righteousness which all mankind have read and on which all mankind will one day stand. I affirmed the dignity of human nature and the right of the people to govern themselves."

And then the generation of the War: "I did the mighty deeds which in your younger days you saw and of which your fathers told. I saved the Union. I put down the rebellion. I freed the slave. I made every slave a free man, of every free man a citizen and of every citizen a voter."

And then he turns to the generation of today: "And now what have we to say? What have we to say? Are we to have a place in that honorable company? Must we engrave upon that column, 'We repealed the Declaration of Independence? We changed the Monroe Doctrine from a doctrine of eternal righteousness and justice, resting on the consent of the governed, to a doctrine of brutal selfishness looking only to our own advantage? We crushed the only republic in Asia? We made war upon the only Christian people in the East? ... No, Mr. President! Never! never! Other and better comely will yet prevail. The hours are long in the life of a great people. The irrevocable step is not yet taken. Let us at least have this to say: 'We too have kept faith of the Father. We took Cuba by the hand. We delivered her from her aching bondage. We welcomed her to the family of nations. We set mankind an example never beheld before of moderation and victory. ... We returned benefit for injury and pity for cruelty. We made the name of America beloved in the East as in the West. We kept faith with the Philippine people. We kept faith with our own history. We kept our national honor unsullied. The flag which we received without a rent we handed down without a stain.'"

Senator Hoar will die an "unsuccessful" man, as things go nowadays. His name is not found in brokers' books in Wall street; it will not be graven on the walls of the millionaires' hall of fame. He was not even a "captain of industry." But he will be remembered while there lives a love of truth and while a man is yet measured by something besides his dollars.

PRESS COMMENT.

Chicago Record-Herald: Portland, Oregon, is to have a world's fair next year, so the Pike attractions will be under no immediate necessity of looking for new jobs.

Oshkosh Northwestern: No matter how wide a woman's dress may gap at the back, did you ever see another woman stop to tell the wearer of the fact if they happened to be strangers to each other?

Seranton Tribune: Candidate Davis has affirmed in writing that he is a friend of labor. Then he had better advise it to take no chances with the democratic party.

Augusta Chronicle: If, as Mr. Cleveland intimates, Divine Providence is guiding the democratic party this year, there ought to be a noticeable change in the odds before long.

La Crosse Leader-Press: The report of remarkable discoveries of relics in an Indian mound would be received with more credence if it had been sent from some place other than Appleton.

Madison Journal: Those Janesville young ladies who object to donning male attire for a "hokey-poke" party at Lauderdale lakes evidently appreciate the difficulty of putting on a pair of trousers over your head.

Louisville Times: The approaching marriage of a granddaughter of Jefferson Davis to a relative of Grant is cited as an instance that the war is over. Pessimists may hold that it is just beginning.

Green Bay Gazette: The Milwaukee News claims great credit to the democratic party for the resolution passed by Idaho democrats against polygamy. It failed to state that it passed only after great hesitancy and once defeated.

Racine Journal: Twelve thousand French nuns having been driven out from convents by the government are bravely seeking work as domestics to serve in any capacity. Some of them may come to this country.

Cincinnati Commercial Tribune: Tom Watson, in accepting the popular nomination for the presidency, said that he could not possibly see how the democrats could win. Incidentally, it is to be remarked that Tom has no patent on his vision. There are others.

Kansas City Star: This is the definition which Tom Cordry, of Kansas, gives of imperialism: "Imperialism is an object with silts for its mouth and nose and eyes and a lighted candle inside of it. It is set on the gatepost after dark and to scare nervous little boys and girls and uppity old ladies, while persons like Mr. W. J. Bryan hide in the bushes and growl in a deep, gruff voice. This is imperialism."

Kenosha Gazette: Oshkosh is preparing to do itself proud on the occasion of the democratic state convention to be held in that city on the 31st inst. The city will be decorated as it never has been before and preparations are under way that shall result in a grand demonstration of that hospitality and royal good fellowship which has made Oshkosh famous the country over. It is evident that no mistake was made when Oshkosh was chosen as the democratic convention city.

Waupaca Post: Waupaca and Portage counties may eventually become the leading Portland cement producing communities of the United States. The new company formed at Manawa has excellent prospects, and it has been known for some years that the Lime lake marl was of the kind of which the finest cement is made. In addition there are several beds of marl in near lakes in the immediate vicinity of this city, which may be found to be most desirable for the work. A little enterprise and a good deal of capital are required to start the work, but, judging from results attained in Michigan, the returns are adequate.

Merely Matter of Location. In the north, where the ruffed grouse is known as the partridge, the bob white is called the quail; in the south, where the ruffed grouse is known as the pheasant, the quail is called the partridge.

TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY

A DRESSING, harmless, invisible substance, is in the market, because best made, twenty-five cents; 4 lbs.

FOUR CORNERS PHILOSOPHER.

Not every person who is a hustler is a hustler.

Some learn by doing and others by being "done."

Too many prefer putting up a job to doing one.

When a fellow strikes a gait he finds an opening.

The man who is hunting for trouble doesn't need a guide.

It isn't always the hardest worker who becomes tired of life.

Not a few who think they are sharp get well trimmed by sharpeners.

The dog with the meekest face won't always stand the most kicking.

The young man who is afraid of working overtime is never in danger of promotion.

When you send money to a get-rich-quick concern remember it's the concern that is getting rich.

The man who is always waiting for something to turn up seldom turns up when there is anything to be done.

The man who thinks a "pull" is necessary in order to be successful should simply pull himself together.

Folks who consider it necessary to agree with everyone else in order to make themselves agreeable are always quoted away below par.

Lots of folks who comfort their neighbors with the old saying about half a loaf would kick like mules if they couldn't have a bakery.

FROM THE PENCIL'S POINT.

Life is a game of promise and take.

If it is easy to begin loafing, but it's hard to stop.

A hitch in a love affair often prevents a matrimonial affair.

Some men find it easier to dodge an obligation than to meet it.

Fortune is the only knocker that a man likes to see at his door.

People who look over the affairs of others are very apt to overlook their own.

Some men think more than they say and some say more than they think.

Men who imagine the world owes them a living try to collect it a loaf at a time.

If a man is hard on his children he is usually an easy mark for his grandchildren.

The garrulous man never knows enough about any question to put up an interesting argument.

A young married couple's first quarrel usually begins with an argument about how to avoid quarrels.

SOME BEAUTY HINTS.

A bad complexion is often—though by no means always—the outward and visible sign of a bad temper.

The afternoon hour of relaxation is found by many women to be a great beauty tonic. "Forty winks" from time to time can save forty wrinkles.

There is an old saying, "As long as there is life there is hope." We can change that, and say just as truly, "As long as there is hope there is life." Without hope, without aspiration, life is hardly worth living.

Any woman by cultivating what is best in her can make of herself a picture in the art gallery of life. The canvas will sometimes be a Rembrandt or a Van Dyke, sometimes a Grouzo or a Reynolds or a Burne-Jones. It is always a picture.

THE HOLY CITY AN INTERESTING PLAY

Fair Sized Audience Witnessed the Production at Myers Theatre Last Night.

"The Holy City," the new play written by Clarence Bennett, author of "A Royal Slave," appeared at the Myers theatre last evening, this being its third week on the road. It was greeted with a fair-sized audience which made evident its appreciation of the familiar scenes of biblical history with frequent applause. If there was seemingly something incongruous and almost profane in the loud hand-clapping that greeted such scenes as the crucifixion and the rolling away of the stone from the tomb, the motive in showing appreciation of what was evidently considered good stage realism could not be questioned. The art was not of that surpassing order which could permit one to forget that he was witnessing a stage production and not the reality. The love of Salome, step-daughter of Herod, for Marius—a Roman noble and a Christian—is woven into the great drama of the Savior's life. Clyde H. Callicott as Marius, Orris Ober as Salome, and Clarence Bennett as John the Baptist, played their parts acceptably. Alexander DeBoer's characterization of Peter was weak and effeminate and the same may be said of Ed Hoyt's Judas. The stage settings and costumes were elaborate and beautiful in many instances.

MERELY QUESTIONS—NOTHING DEFINITE YET

Queries Asked for Answer by a Person Signing As Citizen.

Supposing I was snapped at by a dog and the dog's owner said kill the dog and I told the police about it, and the officer said he knew the dog was cross, yet did nothing about it, how would I get satisfaction or the dog killed? I thought everyone had to leave the park at half-past ten at the latest, yet I have seen people sitting around in both parks after eleven. Who should turn them out: the police? If a man has a political pull is his dog to be exempted from a dog tax? Is it the duty of a citizen to help a police officer if he sees him having trouble?

LAST CHANCE TO SEE TREE

Washington Exhibit Will Be Open Until 10 P. M.

The Washington tree exhibit attracted a large crowd last night and today and everybody who saw it pronounced it well worthy of patronage. From Seattle to Janesville no one person has expressed dissatisfaction and many have said it is worth five times what is charged to see it. In Madison 3,000 persons visited the tent on Friday, Saturday and Sunday. It may be seen for the last time tonight at the north end of the St. Paul freight depot.

MRS. BOTKIN IS GIVEN LIFE TERM IN PRISON

Judge Passes Sentence on Woman Poisoner, Regretting He Cannot Send Her to the Gallows.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 23.—Mrs. Cordella Botkin was sentenced Monday by Superior Judge Carroll Cook to life imprisonment in the state prison at San Quentin for the murder of Mrs. John P. Dunning in Dover, Del., by means of poisoned candy mailed from this city.

In passing sentence Judge Cook expressed regret that he could not impose the death penalty as the jury in its verdict had fixed the punishment. Mrs. Botkin received the sentence without evidence of emotion. An appeal to the supreme court will be taken by her attorneys.

In Superior Judge Dunn's court Attorney Reese Clark asked that the information on file there, charging Mrs. Botkin with the murder of Ida Henrietta Dean, sister of Mrs. John P. Dunning, be dismissed on the grounds of lack of prosecution. The case was continued for trial until Sept. 20.

STATE FAIR HAS MANY ADVANTAGES

Will Be Bigger and Greater Than Ever Before—Grant Fisher Predicts Its Success.

Grant U. Fisher writes from Milwaukee that every preparation is being made to make the coming session of the state fair the greatest ever held within the limits of the state. He has just returned from a trip throughout the entire state in the interests of the fair and says that the interest evinced by the people as a whole is wonderful. In speaking of the particular features of the coming fair, Mr. Fisher calls particular attention to the appearance of Dan Patch, who will try to lower his own world's record, and the racing by electric light every night the fair is in session. There have been several slides laid, new buildings erected, until the grounds are really permanently improved rather than put in shape for a week or so each fall.

Disappearing as completely as if the earth had opened and swallowed him, Fred Wilby, an engineer in the employ of the Beloit Electric company, has been missing since Friday morning, and his employers and his wife, who lives at Madison, are equally at a loss to account for his whereabouts. The Beloit police were given the case Saturday night, and the Janesville police have been furnished with a description of the man.

ENGINEER HAS NOT BEEN FOUND

Fred Wilby, an Employee of the Beloit Electric Company, Is Missing.

Disappearing as completely as if the earth had opened and swallowed him, Fred Wilby, an engineer in the employ of the Beloit Electric company, has been missing since Friday morning, and his employers and his wife, who lives at Madison, are equally at a loss to account for his whereabouts. The Beloit police were given the case Saturday night, and the Janesville police have been furnished with a description of the man.

Mr. Wilby has been working for the company only a few days, coming to Beloit from Madison, but he was a first class workman who had been engaged because of his good record in other places. He was not a drinking man and was a man of good habits and appearance. He commanded a high salary and no reason can be imagined why he should have left his new position without notice.

The engineer roomed at Miss Esplanade's house at the corner of Broad and Pleasant streets in Beloit, and boarded at H. H. Hays'. He was last seen by Miss Esplanade when he left the house Thursday night to go to his dinner, previous to going to his work, his hours being from noon to midnight. When he did not make his appearance at the power plant at noon Friday the officials began to make inquiries as to his whereabouts. He had not been seen at the restaurant after he had his dinner there on Thursday and his bed at his room showed that he had not slept there the night before. Mr. Wilby's wife was communicated with at Madison, but she knew nothing as to what had become of him. Finally his employers made up their minds that it was a case for the police to investigate Saturday evening. Up to the present time they have no clue as to his whereabouts. They think that it is possible that he has met with foul play though they do not believe that is probable. Wilby is about 33 years of age and is well dressed.

NEGRO'S BODY IS BURNED AFTER BEING RIDDLED

Citizens of Cedar town, Ga., Avenge Assault on White Girl—Corpse Is Dragged Over the Roads.

Cedar town, Ga., Aug. 23.—Jim Glover, a negro, was shot to death Monday night near the home of Leola Reeves, the white girl he had assaulted, and his body dragged a distance of about a mile into this city and burned at the stake on the public square. A mob estimated at 500 composed the shooting and burning party.

Hoodlums had been on the negro's track all day, and he was captured some distance away late in the afternoon, carried to the home of the girl, who unhesitatingly identified him as her assailant.

In the meantime a crowd of fully 500 persons had gathered and summary justice was meted out to the negro as soon as it was learned that the young girl had positively identified him. The negro confessed his guilt. Immediately the crowd took him away from the posse, which had captured him and his body was riddled with bullets.

The crowd continued to gather, and when the march back to the town with the dead body in tow began it appeared as if fully 1,000 persons had joined the procession. By the time the crowd reached Cedar town several hundred more had been added to the crowd. About 2,000 persons witnessed the burning as best they could in the bright moonlight on the most conspicuous place on Main street.

A flatterer is, ordinarily, the man who says pretty things to the other woman.

The man who has no time for anything is the one who usually wastes the most.

If you are looking for jealousy in woman, don't hunt for one who is conceited.

Fools speak wise things sometimes—but not so often as the wise man does the foolish thing.

Boys will be boys, and the unfortunate part of it is that some of them never get over it when they grow up.

Married men invent the mother-in-law joke, but only the bachelors can afford to laugh at them.

"San Toy" that picturesque story of the land of the Chinese, which is so full of the flavor of the Orient that it requires no great stretch of the imagination to picture oneself as being actually among its scenes and people, is coming here soon with John C. WEREIN ST. LOUIS DURING BIG WIND

Dr. and Mrs. Pember and Dr. and Mrs. Mills Returned From Exposition Last Night.

Dr. and Mrs. Pember and daughter and Dr. and Mrs. James Mills and son returned last evening from St. Louis where they visited the exposition for a week. They were on the cyclone struck the northern portion of the city and say that the wind was something terrible. At times during the past week the heat seemed almost unbearable but there were large crowds at the exposition every day, notwithstanding. Among the other Janesville people at St. Louis last week were Miss Shields, Mr. Merrill, and John Shearer.

"San Toy" that picturesque story of the land of the Chinese, which is so full of the flavor of the Orient that it requires no great stretch of the imagination to picture oneself as being actually among its scenes and people, is coming here soon with John C. Fisher of "Florodora" and "Silver Slipper" fame as its promoter, and in his company such well-known artists as James T. Powers, George K. Forester, Margaret McKinney, John Peachey, Josephine Neumann, V. L. Romaniuk, Minna Randolph and many other players and singers who were in the company that first sang it in America. "San Toy" has never been presented in this city and therefore its coming may be classed as a positive event in view of the very emphatic success it scored in New York and some of the few other large cities where it has been presented. The company which Mr. Fisher will bring here numbers one hundred people, and two 60 foot cars are necessary to store the scenery and baggage in traveling.

BIRTHDAY PARTY FOR AGNES MOORE

Little Friends Help Her to Celebrate This Afternoon at the Home of Miss Tessie Gibbons.

Little Agnes Moore of Chicago, who is visiting her aunt, Miss Tessie Gibbons, entertained a few of her little friends this afternoon in honor of her seventh birthday. The afternoon was spent in games and amusements suitable to the little ones, after which delicious refreshments were served. Little Agnes was well remembered by her friends who presented her with an elegant silver souvenir spoon. The following young folks were present: Gertrude McGinley, Mae Abbott, Josephine McGinley, Mabel Slawson, Margaret Joyce, Stella Flynn, Agnes Joyce, Mamie McGinley, and Genevieve McGinley.

TO KEEP CONVICTS BUSY IN ILLINOIS PRISON

Members of State Board to Devise Plans to Provide Employment for the Inmates.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 23.—At a meeting of the state board of prison industries, held Monday, C. A. Perduene of Marshall, a member of the board of trustees of the state reformatory at Pontiac, was re-elected president. T. J. Clark of Quincy, a member of the board of trustees of the penitentiary at Joliet, was re-elected secretary.

Now that the injunctions that have been temporarily acting against the new anti-convict labor law have been dismissed the new industries for the employment of convicts in the state institutions will be established at once. It has been decided that at the next meeting of the body each member shall present a plan for the further and better operation of the new law, which became effective July 1, last. No provision was made by the act creating a board for the disposal of the prison products and this matter presents a new problem which must be solved at an early date.

The Joliet penitentiary will manufacture furniture for state schools and institutions and state offices. Building material will also be made and several minor lines of industry will be followed. At Pontiac the reformatory printing will be taught and state of fices will be supplied with such printing matter as the institution can turn out. It is also proposed to manufacture building hardware and carpenter's tools and to teach the inmates useful trades.

At Chester the prisoners will make brick and clothing, the clothing to be such as is used for inmates of state penal and charitable institutions.

Custom of Roman Mothers.

A Roman mother of classic days hung a bull's about her baby's neck as soon as he could walk. Often this was just a disc of metal or leather, bearing the name of the child's family; but more often it was a hollow metal case, richly ornamented, which held charms against evil spirits.

CABBAGE PESTS.

Trouble With Root Maggots—Prevention and Cure—Plant Lice.

By D. F. SMITHSON.

Root maggots give considerable trouble to cabbage growers in many sections of the country. The cabbage or root maggot and the onion maggot, which may be treated as practically of the same species, cause loss to cauliflower, early cabbages, turnips, radishes and onions. Experiments carried on last summer at the Canada experimental farms with the object of producing early tobacco and vegetables of high quality are interesting in this connection. An inclosure was made of a light framework of wood six feet in height and covered top and sides with cheesecloth. Within this were planted tobacco and various kinds of vegetables. This cheap protection not only hastened the maturity of plants, but wholly prevented the attacks of various injurious insects. Radishes, onions, cabbages and cauliflower developed well under these conditions and were entirely free from root maggots. There was no trouble from cucumber beetles, so destructive to the various cucurbits. This tenting device seemed a sure means of securing perfect condition in vegetables such as cauliflower, cabbages, radishes, onions and others of moderate height that usually suffer from insect depredations. Instead of the tent, gardeners could use an easily made light framework three feet high and three feet wide for single rows in a garden.

CABBAGE MAGGOT.

1st maggot and pupa cases; 2, fly; 3 and 4 and were entirely free from root maggots. There was no trouble from cucumber beetles, so destructive to the various cucurbits. This tenting device seemed a sure means of securing perfect condition in vegetables such as cauliflower, cabbages, radishes, onions and others of moderate height that usually suffer from insect depredations. Instead of the tent, gardeners could use an easily made light framework three feet high and three feet wide for single rows in a garden.

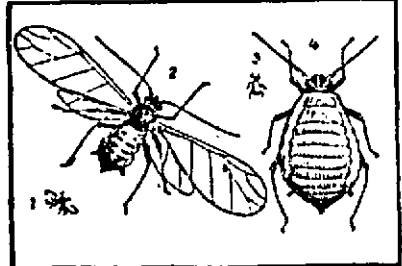

A Maine cabbage grower says he entirely killed out root maggots in three days by the use of salt. One man dug around the roots of the cabbage, exposing the maggots; a second hand, following after him, applied a pinch of salt (as fine "coarse" salt as can be procured) to the maggots, and a third put back the earth.

Another application sometimes used in the same way is a half teaspoonful of a strong decoction of pyrethrum powder. Four ounces to the gallon of water. It is poured around the roots of each plant after drawing the earth away right down to the rootlets. The earth is then pushed back again. Disks of tarred paper are considered one of the best preventives.

Plant lice of various kinds have been very abundant during a few seasons past. The cabbage and the turnip have their particular pest in this line, known as Aphis brassicae. John Fletcher, the Canadian entomologist, recommends that the insect be looked for when cabbage plants in gardens are being cultivated, and as soon as the first colonies appear, which will probably be late in July or in August, they should be attended to at once before they increase in number.

Whole lot soap, a pound in six gallons of water, or the ordinary one to nine dilution of kerosene emulsion, if sprayed thoroughly, will destroy the aphids. In turnip fields, where by far the greatest amount of injury is done, those engaged in thinning and hoeing should be constantly on the watch for infested plants, which may at that time be hoed out and destroyed. This will in many instances be sufficient to prevent the occurrence later of a serious outbreak.

The eggs of this insect are laid on the turnip tops late in autumn. This suggests the advisability of plowing down deeply all tops which are cut from the roots at the time of harvesting in autumn, so as to destroy the eggs. In fields of cabbages where also eggs are laid the same practice should prevail when the cabbages cannot be fed or are too poor to store for feed purposes.

Root Obstruction to Drains.

As far as known, the roots of grasses, grains and annual field crops do not obstruct underground, but this is not the case with some trees. Among them are the willows, water elm, tamarack and sometimes the soft maple, which in a short time will fill the drain with a mass of root hairs, even when they are growing fifty feet distant from the line of the drain. Some field drains under ordinary conditions contain no water during a considerable portion of the growing season. These drains which are fed by springs or have a continual flow through them are more subject to obstruction from the roots of trees than drains which are dry for a part of the year.

Where there is reason to suspect that there will be difficulty with tree roots the joints of the lines near the trees should be securely cemented. It is safe to say that all willows and water elms growing within fifty feet of any line of drain should be destroyed irrespective of the flow of water in the drain.

SHE PREFERRED A PIRATE

(Original.)

Captain Ralph Gordon and his mate, Tom Gurley, stood on the after deck of the schooner Swallow. Amidships a girl in a thin blue outfit dress with sailor collar and a Tam O'Shanter cap was leaning over the gunwale.

"Better not try it, captain," said Gurley. "H'll result in a muddle. These tiger gals is dangerous."

"Can't give it up now. We've gone too far."

The mate went forward and the captain paced the deck nervously.

Ralph Gordon was terribly in love with Nancy Greene, a shrew. In order to tame her he had invited her for a sail on his schooner and concocted a sham mutiny to be led by Gurley.

They were to frighten her into obedience and a promise to marry Gordon to whom she had been long engaged and whom she had put off from year to year.

Presently Gurley walked aft from the fore-castle, followed by the crew, and began a complaint about the mate that was served them, at the same time demanding "duff" three times a week.

Gordon feigned to reason with them, whereupon they made a rush for him, bound him hand and foot, and, taking him below, locked him in his cabin.

Nancy Greene looked upon this mutiny, and especially the want of resistance on the captain's part, with dumb astonishment and the flashes of an approaching thunderstorm in her eye.

No sooner had the captain been disposed of than Gurley approached her and ordered her below. Her only reply was with an iron bolt, which she had picked up at the first dawn of trouble, and had not Gurley dodged expertly the ringleader would have been put out of the fight.

The crew roared like bulls and brandished knives, but Nancy was no more appalled than if they had been so many bleating sheep. She was finally taken in rear by a laughing sailor whose face she could not see, her arms pinioned, she was thrust down the fore-castle companionway and the hatch closed.

There was no sound from Gordon's stateroom aft, nor was any expected. But some sound was expected from the fore-castle. The crew listened for such cries and imprecations as might come from an enraged woman. Half an hour passed, and not a whisper came from below.

"It's my opinion, Mr. Gurley," said an old salt, "that when either gals or children is quiet there's mischief brewing."

"Wonder what she's up to," said Gurley.

What she was up to was soon plainly and painfully evident, for smoke began to issue from the hatchway.

It did not require a long time to remove the hatch and for the crew to scupper down the hatchway. They found Nancy with her face up to a hawse pipe for air, while several of the many mattresses piled in the middle of the floor were smoldering and ready to burst into a flame.

A little water put out the fire, but Gurley's wrath had been kindled and was not to be so easily quenched. He determined on a supreme effort. He went up on deck and gave orders to two of the men to lower a boat over the port bow, then told two others each to take Nancy by a wrist and bring her up on deck.

There she saw a man running out a plank on the port side. Gurley was angry enough to make any one suppose he was in earnest without assuming any harshness of manner. Pointing to the plank, he said to the girl:

"You may as well understand that by this mutiny we've put our necks in a halter. You and the captain are the only witnesses against us. You're altogether too desperate to let live. Now, walk straight out on that plank and into the water."

"I didn't know you were a pirate," blushed Nancy.

"Got to be a pirate. Mutiny means a swing to the yardarm for every man of us. Come, get along."

Since Nancy didn't move, Gurley motioned the men to close round her, and she was edged out on to the plank. Gurley ordered a man to go to the port bow to make sure the men in the boat were ready, as soon as they heard a splash, to pull around and rescue her. The man reported the oarsmen resting on their oars.

"There's one way to save yourself," said Gurley, "and only one—get spilled to Captain Gordon and both sign articles indemnifying this crew of all blame."

"Marry him! Never!"

"Shove her off, boys."

"Stop!" cried the girl, by this time quite frightened. "I'll sign."

"All right. Let her come aboard."

Gurley drew up the agreement, which the girl asked to take below to read over. Her request was granted, and when she came up she had signed it. Gordon was brought up from the cabin and informed that there was to be a Scotch marriage. The pair were asked to stand side by side, when the girl exclaimed:

"I'm not going to marry that whelped cur! I didn't agree to. Read the paper."

Gurley cast his eye to the paper and for the first time noticed that the name of Ralph Gordon had been erased and that of Tom Gurley substituted.

"Well, I'll be fuzzed!" exclaimed the mate. "Did ever any one see the likes of woman! I was don't the job of making her walk the plank, and she preferred me to an honest man."

"That was the end of the plot to break them apart, and six months later she married Tom Gurley."

"Without One Dull Line"

Such has been the verdict of recognized literary critics in speaking of our new serial, entitled:

Little France

A ROMANCE OF THE DAYS WHEN THE GREAT LORD HAWKE WAS KING OF THE SEAS.

By CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

Here is what the Art Amateur, of New York, says of the story: Mr. Brady stands at the head of contemporary writers of sea romances. This is the most picturesque and stirring tale which he has offered to the public. He has opened a fresh field in which readers will meet "the great Lord Hawke" and his picturesque adventures for the first time. It is believed, in fiction, Mr. Brady has spent much time in the consideration of his theme, and his local coloring is singularly vivid. His hero, an eighteenth century American serving in the English navy, in English waters and at Quebec, passes through a series of engrossing adventures that culminate in the wonderful conflict on the Britany coast which showed the power of the Quiberon touch. The gallant fighting on sea and land, so brilliantly sketched, is accompanied and softened by a charming love tale. As a love story alone, this romance exhibits a piquant and fascinating quality that will move the sympathies and interest of readers. As a sea romance, it shows a broader canvas and bolder touch than the author has used before. His sea fights are superb in their graphic power. "Little France" is not only a delightful history, but it brings with it the genuine savor of the salt and the very breath of the waves.

The Final Blow at Atlanta

A FORTIETH ANNIVERSARY WAR STORY

September 1, 1864

(Copyright, 1901, by G. L. Kilmer.)

By the end of August, 1864, Sherman had fought his way step by step to the very gates of Atlanta. He did not attempt to take the works by storm, but established the Twentieth corps under General W. H. Slocum in the trenches he had built in front of the city and launched forth with the main part of his army to cut the communications of his opponent on the south.

The Confederate commander at Atlanta, General J. B. Hood, was a brave but impetuous soldier and had depleted his fighting strength in heroic efforts to loosen Sherman's grip by desperate attacks in open field. Even when virtually surrounded he still clung to the citadel. It was said that he believed that Sherman's supplies were exhausted and that the Federal army was at the point of abandoning the siege. From this dream he was suddenly awakened by the appearance of an immense army of foes southwest of Atlanta, close to the railroads from the south which brought supplies to his camps. Still determined to fight to the last, he dispatched General Hardee with his own corps and that led by General S. D. Lee to defend the railroads and remained in the Atlanta trenches with the rest of his force.

The march of Hardee's column southward was led by the intrepid Pat Cleburne, the "Stonewall of the West," who could always find an enemy and stir up a fight, even though the chances were against him. Cleburne struck out for the extreme flank of Sherman's moving column, intending to march till he reached it, then double it up by a vigorous attack, like his prototype at Chancellorsville. He had the victim of Chancellorsville, General O. O. Howard, to deal with, but Howard was alert and had already seized the road ahead of Cleburne.

It was an accident which took Howard so far south that Cleburne was headed off and the Confederate plan of campaign changed. Howard discovered that there was no water at the place where Sherman had ordered him to halt and pushed on to Flint river. There he intrenched a position, having learned that the enemy was in force at Jonesboro, a point near by and only fifteen miles from Atlanta, with rail communications still open. During the night Howard heard the trains moving southward from Atlanta and sent word to Sherman, who was following in his wake with the army of the Cumberland, under sturdy "Pap" Thomas, that the enemy was not to be caught napping.

There were rare fighting spirits gathering around the wayside halting place that August afternoon. "Black Jack" Logan was in line along Howard's front and was soon pounced upon by the indomitable Hardee. The Confederates did not fight with their old time vigor, and Logan held his ground. Meanwhile the restless Cleburne came thundering along in Howard's rear, making a two sided fight of it. But Howard was not alone in his warlike with Hardee. General Schofield's Federal corps, having taken a wider sweep to the west than Howard, came in between Jonesboro and Atlanta and cut the railroad, heading off a train which sped back to Atlanta with the news that Sherman's army was marching on the city from the south. Hood attempted to recall Lee's corps from Hardee's line at Jonesboro to defend Atlanta, but it was too late. Sherman ordered Slocum to push things on the northern side of the beleaguered city and if possible drive Hood from the trenches.

In order to strengthen Howard, Sherman brought forward Thomas' Cumberland army, a move which led to the hard fight at Jonesboro on Sept. 1, settling the fate of Atlanta. Up to this point Sherman was simply getting his forces into position to control the railroad and be ready to fight Hood somewhere south of Atlanta as soon as the severing of railway communications forced him to evacuate that stronghold. But the Federal scouts picked up the news that Hood had sent word to Hardee to return S. D. Lee's corps to him at Atlanta. Thinking that the loss of Lee's help would place Hardee at the mercy of his army, Sherman determined to close in and capture Jonesboro, Hardee and all.

Now, when Hardee took up his position at Jonesboro he expected to deal only with Howard's column, coming against him from the west. The right or northern flank of his line was held by Cleburne's division, and this flank was struck by Thomas' advance corps under General Jeff C. Davis. Three divisions of Davis' column formed in front of Cleburne, and the brigade of United States regulars led by Colonel Edie sallied out to reconnoiter and see what Cleburne had in front. Driving the men in gray from a ridge they occupied as an outpost after a brisk skirmish, Edie planted his flag and declared that his line extended beyond the salient angle of the enemy, the key to the position. Two divisions of Davis' corps rallied around Edie, and a battery was hauled up the ridge which entailed part of Cleburne's line and disabled a number of the Confederate guns.

Finally all was ready for an assault, Sherman being on the ground and impatient of delay. The divisions of Canby and Morgan charged forward in two lines, Edie's regulars having the lead and carrying the enemy's salient at the first rush. In this charge the famous Eighteenth United States Infantry won new laurels. The commander of the Eighteenth, Captain L. M. Kellogg, rode out in front of the colors, picking his way through a dense undergrowth for 400 yards, to the edge of an open field. Reforming their line, the regulars dashed on a distance of 800 yards, all the way under fire. On reaching the breastworks, filled with Cleburne's Tennesseans, Captain Kellogg spurred his horse over the parapet to inspire his men with bravery. The gallant soldier was hit by a bullet and a fragment of shell at the same time, but continued to urge on his followers until they were inside the works.

The sudden blow of the regulars surprised the Confederates in Cleburne's front line, but a second Confederate line lay in hiding in the woods beyond, with an unobstructed range of the ground captured by the daring assaults. The regulars held their ground for a time, suffering heavily, and, not being supported in the attack, were finally driven out by a rush of Cleburne's men.

The point in dispute was only a trifling height, defended by three worn down brigades of Tennesseans, but the fate of Hardee's line at Jonesboro was at stake and after that the fate of Hood at Atlanta. If Jonesboro fell, the whole Confederate rear lay at the mercy of Sherman, and Atlanta could not be held. While the regulars were heroically fighting to break through the salient Thomas had been away hurrying up another division to support the attack. He reached the front at 5 o'clock, and Colonel Estes' volunteer brigade moved slowly through the tangled undergrowth to the field in front of the works where Edie had fought so well only to be driven out. Estes' men were not behind Edie's in courage and dash and took the salient in a few minutes, losing one-third of their number, but holding on to the prize. In the Thirty-eighth Ohio 150 men fell, the highest loss of the day.

While Estes clung to the salient the companion brigades of Canby's division swept in from the left and Morgan's division from the right, completely enveloping the angle which had cost so much brave blood. Cleburne's advance brigade was captured almost entire, with its leader, General Govan, and two batteries of artillery. After the loss of the salient Cleburne drew back his two brigades under Lewis and Granberry, forming a new salient, and stood ready for another assault, but darkness ended the conflict and the fighting for Atlanta.

When news reached Hood in Atlanta of the doings of Sherman at Jonesboro he knew that the Federals were neither hard up for rations, as originally supposed, nor moving north to inclose the city. Two corps of troops remained with him there, and these he set in motion the night of the 1st to pass around Sherman's flank and join Hardee and Lee, ten miles southeast of Jonesboro. Hardee at the same time withdrew from the lines so bravely defended by Cleburne.

About midnight of the 1st the Federals in Slocum's camps on the north side of Atlanta heard explosions in the direction of the city, and at daylight couriers brought word to headquarters that the place had been abandoned and the military stores destroyed by powder and flames. Slocum appeared before the city early on the 2d of September and received his surrender by the mayor. Sherman soon got word and telegraphed to Washington, "Atlanta is ours and fairly won."

The Confederates were highly elated over the escape of Hood from the clutches of Atlanta while Sherman was south of him with an immense force. In point of fact Sherman was bent upon smashing the railroads and the half of the Confederate army with Hardee at Jonesboro.

OLD MANSIONS STILL STAND IN ROXBURY, MASS.

Severely Simple and Without Pretensions to Architectural Beauty, They Are Good for Many Years to Come—Homes of Famous Men.

(Special Correspondence.)

The exact date of the founding of the town of Roxbury, Mass., is a matter of some doubt, but it is certain that it was founded as early as the 10th of July in the year 1630, for the Town Book shows that one Griffin Craft was born there on that day. No doubt he was the first child born in the town. The founders of the town were many of them from London, while a few were from the west of England.

From the time of its founding down to the present day there have been Crafts, Parkers, Jennys, Seavers, Welchs and Paysons in Roxbury. The names of Dudley, Curtis, Williams and Griggs are also associated with the entire history of the town. They are names that stand for all that is best in the growth of Roxbury, and no town in America can show a finer "honor roll" than can this old town.

Of all the names associated with the history of Roxbury none stand forth with greater prominence than that of Elliot, the great apostle to the Indians. "Born at Naxton, England, twenty miles from London, he came to Roxbury in the year 1632 and became pastor of the church there. The story of his ministry of more than half a century is one of the most interesting in the religious history of our country.

That Roxbury was not a town of very rapid growth is known from the fact that at the close of the war of the revolution, more than 125 years after the above description was written, Roxbury had but 213 dwelling houses, 167 barns, 160 corn houses, three churches and five schools. Many of the people of the town must have been engaged in tanning, for we are told that there were at this time eighteen tan houses and slaughter houses. There was a chocolate mill in the town at this time. In the year 1730 the town had 2,228 inhabitants.

It is in part of the "fayre houses" of the early days of Roxbury that this chronicle has to deal. The first houses in the town could not have been very "fayre" to look upon, judged by our modern standard of beauty. They were like all the houses of that time in New England—of but one story, with very steep roofs, and they were built of clay and mud or of roughly hewn logs. They had huge stone chimneys in the center, and the fireplaces were of great size. Most of the houses had but one room, with perhaps a loft above used as a sleeping room by some members of the family. Some of the windows were of oiled paper instead of glass, and the first windows were of small, diamond-shaped panes of glass.

It goes without saying that the furnishings of these first Roxbury homes were very simple and primitive. None of the first houses built in Roxbury are now standing, although there are some of ancient origin. One of these is the old Gov. Shirley house, on Shirley street. This old house is supposed to have been built about the year 1748, most of the material of which it is composed having been brought from England at a very heavy cost by Gov. Shirley, who was governor of Massachusetts from the year 1741 to 1756.

Shirley Place was one of the finest mansions in the Roxbury of that day, and no house in Roxbury and few in Boston ever received more distinguished guests under its roof. To this house came Washington, Lafayette, Franklin and John Adams. Gov. Shirley entertained in a very lavish way. The mansion was made a barracks for our soldiers in 1775, and at the close of the war of the revolution the house became the property of Maj. Read, who was one of the leading politicians of Roxbury.

John Quincy Adams, Henry Clay, Daniel Webster, Aaron Burr and John

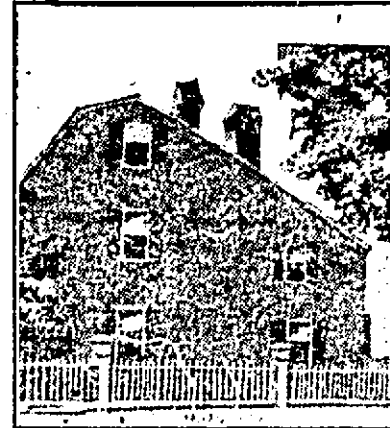

Calhoun were among the guests, who have been dined and wine in this house. Perhaps the most distinguished guest is the old house during its occupancy by Gov. Ennis as Lafayette, who spent there the night of June 16, 1825, before attending the ceremony of the laying of the cornerstone of Bunker Hill monument on the following day. Lafayette was given a banquet by Gov. Ennis at his house in Roxbury, and all Roxbury turned out to welcome him to the town.

The old Williams house in Roxbury is of very ancient origin, and it has been occupied by generation after generation of the Williams family. It was built about the year 1680, and it was for many years the home of Stephen Williams, who was one of the many tanners who have lived in Roxbury. The house was sold to Samuel Walker about eighty years ago, and he spent a large sum of money in beautifying the then extensive grounds. He was one of the most noted horticulturists of his day. He died in the old house in December, 1860.

The house of the "Apostle" Elliot stood immediately in the rear of the building now occupied by the People's National bank. Elliot owned here a small estate of two and one-half acres of ground and a house of two stories, with a gambrel roof. He did the most remarkable work among the Indians of any man that ever came to New England. He accomplished, after twelve years of hard labor, the great task of translating the Bible into the Indian tongue, and Cotton Mather declared that Elliot "wrote the whole with but one pen." This was the first Bible printed on this continent, and copies of it are so rare that they are worth thousands of dollars.

Many thousands of visitors to Roxbury on the 15th of June, on the occasion of the dedication of the beautiful monument to Gen. Joseph Warren, noticed the elaborately decorated old house on Warren street, a short distance from Dudley. This is the Mead house, known to many as the old Turner house, and it is said to be the oldest house in Roxbury, having been built in 1682.

The homestead of Gen. Joseph Warren was in by-gone days one of the most attractive places in Roxbury. It contained originally seven acres, and it came into the possession of the grandfather of Gen. Warren as long ago as 1687. The house in which Gen. Warren was born was built in 1720, and the stone house now standing on the site of the old house was built in 1816. The entire estate could not be sold for $1,000 in the year 1833, and people thought it was a case of enormously inflated value when it was sold for $5,000 at auction.

Roxbury has many other old houses rich in historical associations and a full record of them would fill many pages of this paper. No suburb of Boston has a more interesting history nor more interesting landmarks.

No Irreverence Intended.

"Ah, Mrs. Fullenwider!" snarled said Mrs. Judge Stang's middle-aged, tub-shaped, red-nosed and eminently comfortable-looking bachelor brother-in-law, addressing a worthy, but somewhat prying matron of the village, who had dropped in by the back way to borrow a jelly recipe, and was lingering as if still unsatisfied.

"Perhaps you noticed that, in church last Sabbath morning I kept putting time with my foot to the string of the choir, and doubtless you wondered why I did so."

"My action was not due, as you may have suspected, to irreverence, but simply my inability to control that left—or limb of mine ever since I broke it in Chicago, over two years ago, and it was set by a doctor of music. Pleasant day, isn't it, Mrs. Fullenwider?"—New York Tribune.

Patriotism in Japan.

From Joslin, a northern province of Japan, comes the story that the young men of country neighborhoods are plowing and cultivating the ground at night, while the owners are asleep, of those whose sons are away in the war. These unknown helpers meet and secretly go to the fields with their plows and spades without the knowledge of any one. Next morning the owners are astonished to find the large amount of work accomplished. The school children are also instructed to go from field to field and sweep off the locusts, which commit great depredations on the growing rice.
